MESSAGE

I am happy to know that you are celebrating the 58th Raising Day of Indian Defence Service of Engineers (IDSE).

The Raising Day is an apt occasion to take a solemn pledge to continue to work with utmost sincerity, dedication and commitment. I am sure that the IDSE officers will strive to keep pace with the latest technological and professional levels prevalent the world over.

IDSE has been rendering commendable service in the field of engineering to our Armed Forces and the other allied departments of the Ministry of Defence. The IDSE has come a long way from the era of barracks and temporary buildings to the modern era of structures built with the help of latest technology.

I extend my best wishes to all IDSE officers and the members of their families for a bright and a prosperous future.

Please accept my best wishes for future endeavours.

(A. K. ANTONY)
